

HOUSE & GARDEN[®]

November
2016
£4.30

DUTCH MASTER

*The garden of planting pioneer
Piet Oudolf*

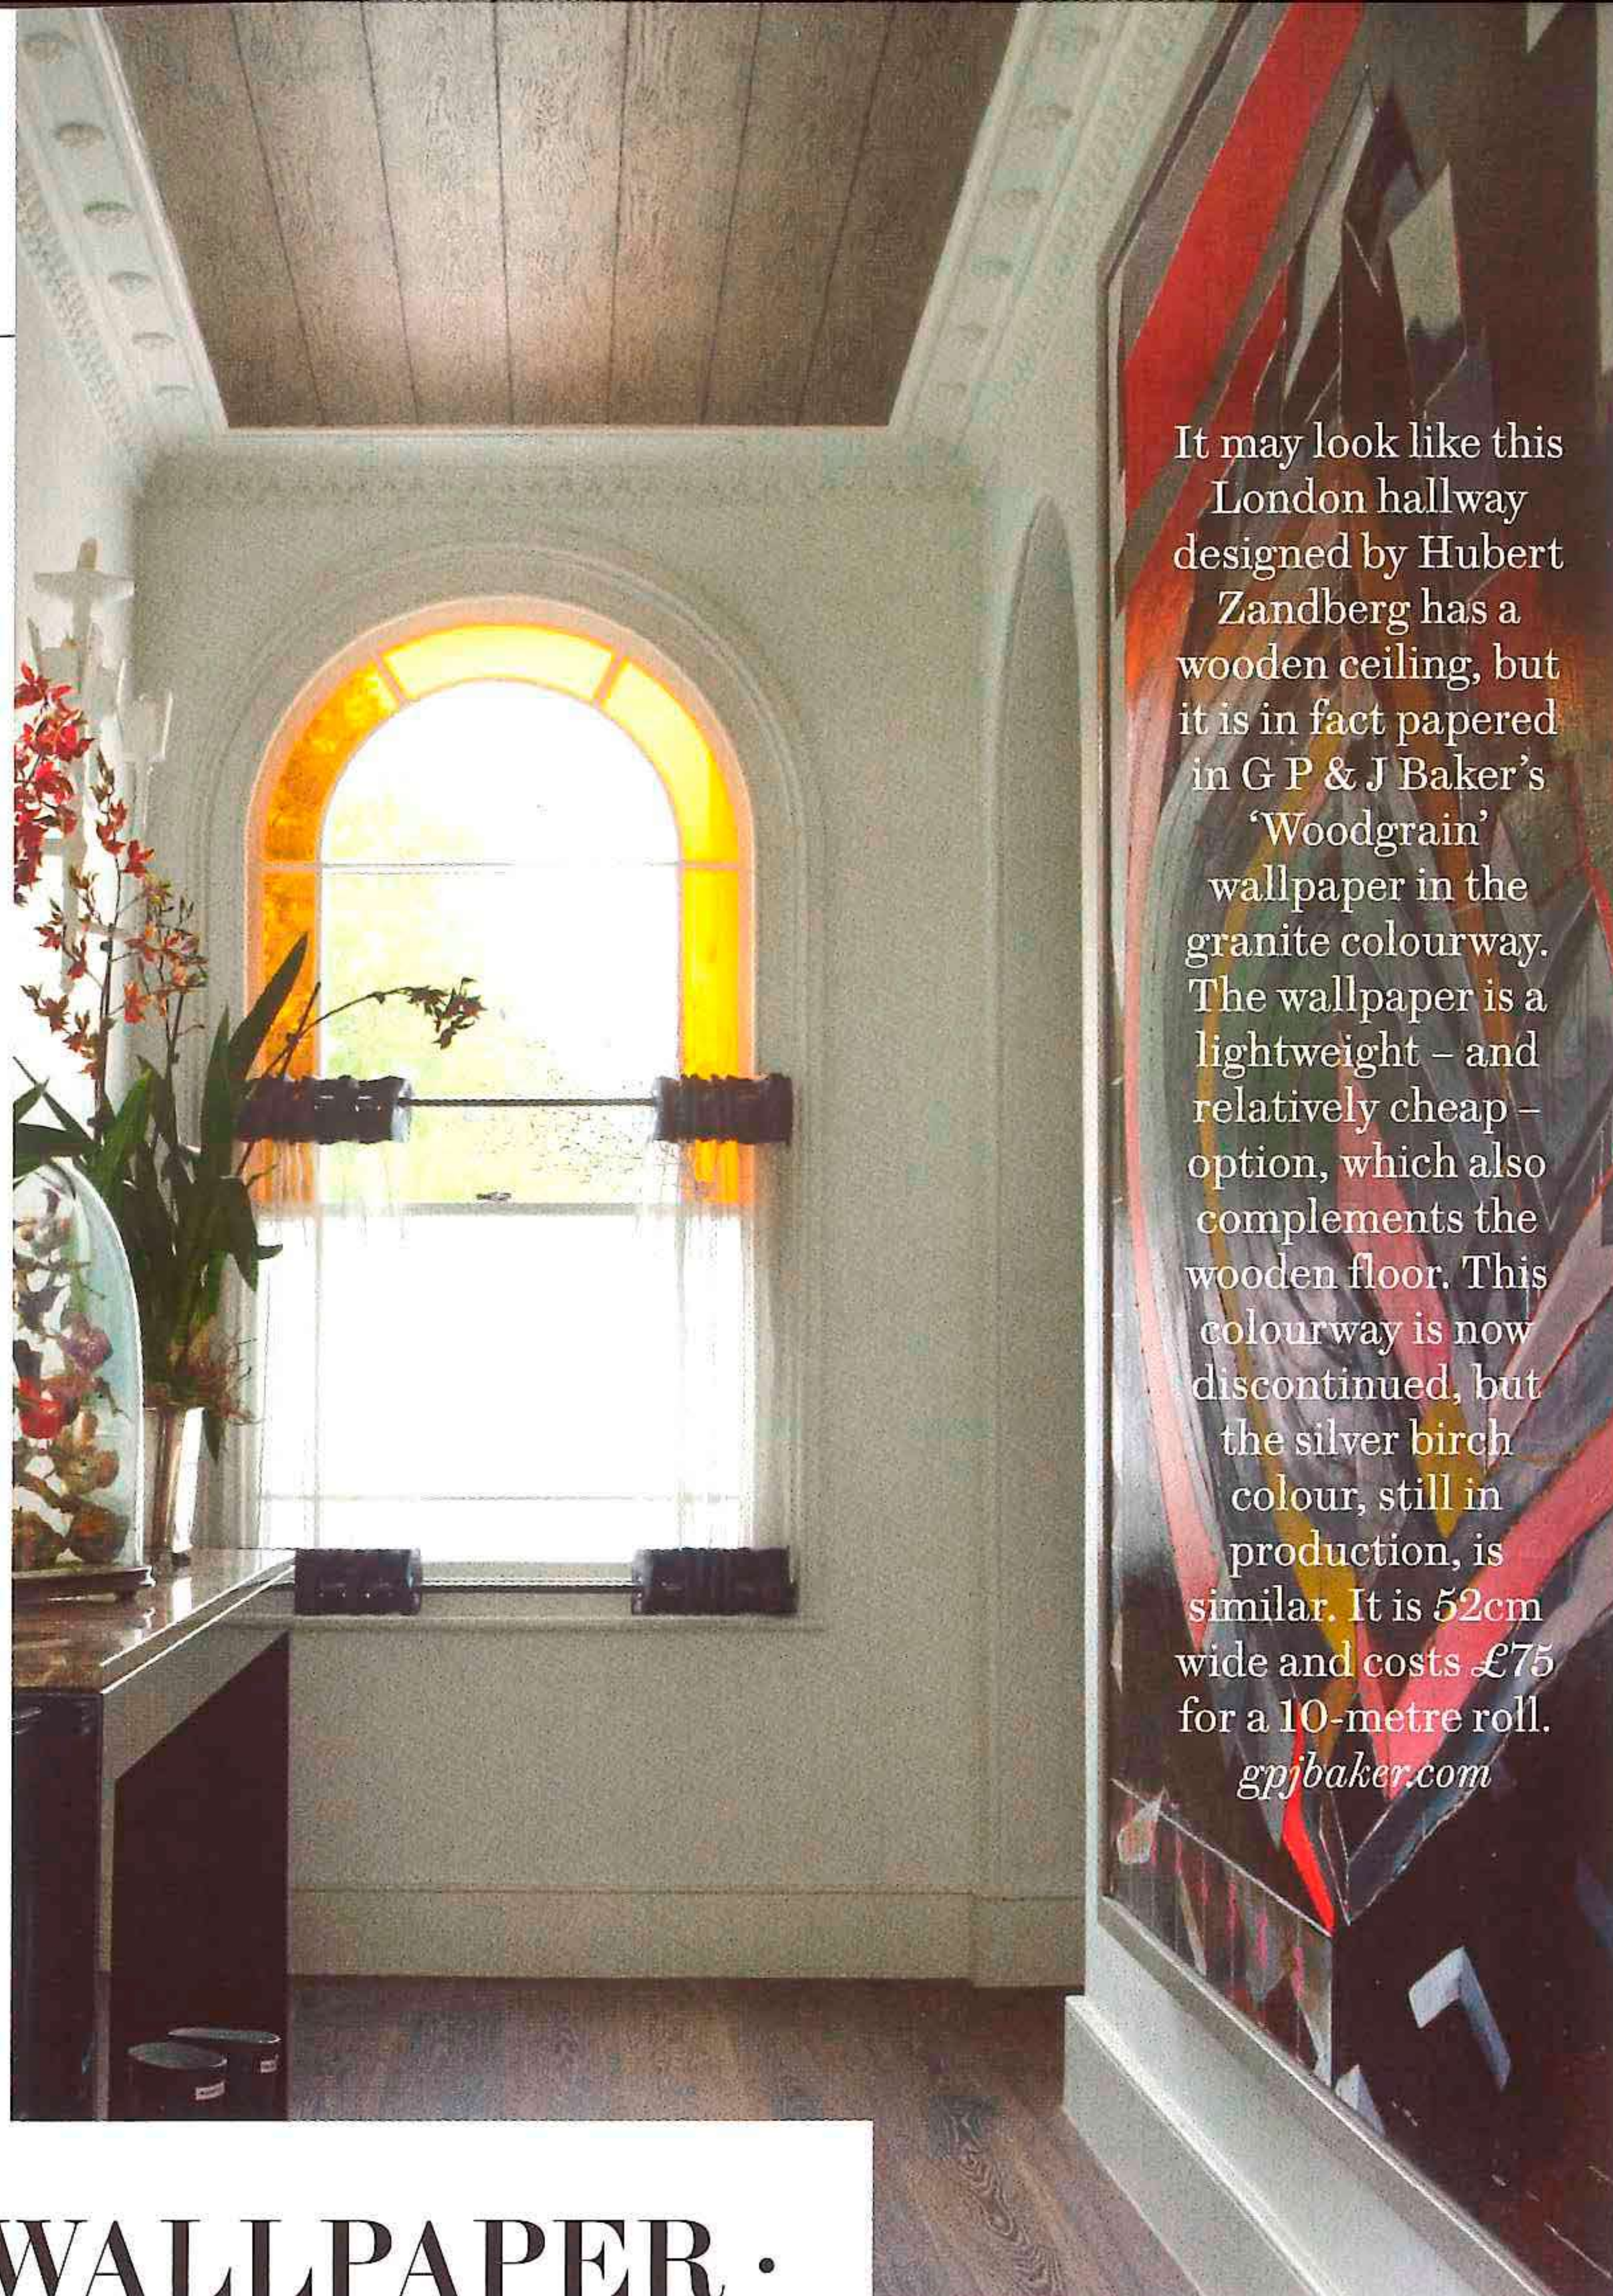

PLUS
LIVING WITH ART
WHO, WHAT, WHERE
A 28-PAGE GUIDE
TO BUYING & DISPLAYING ART

AWARD WINNING HOUSES

A SENSITIVE GEORGIAN
RESTORATION IN SOMERSET

&
LORD ROTHSCHILD'S MODERN
MARVEL AT WADDESDON

9 770043 575230
111

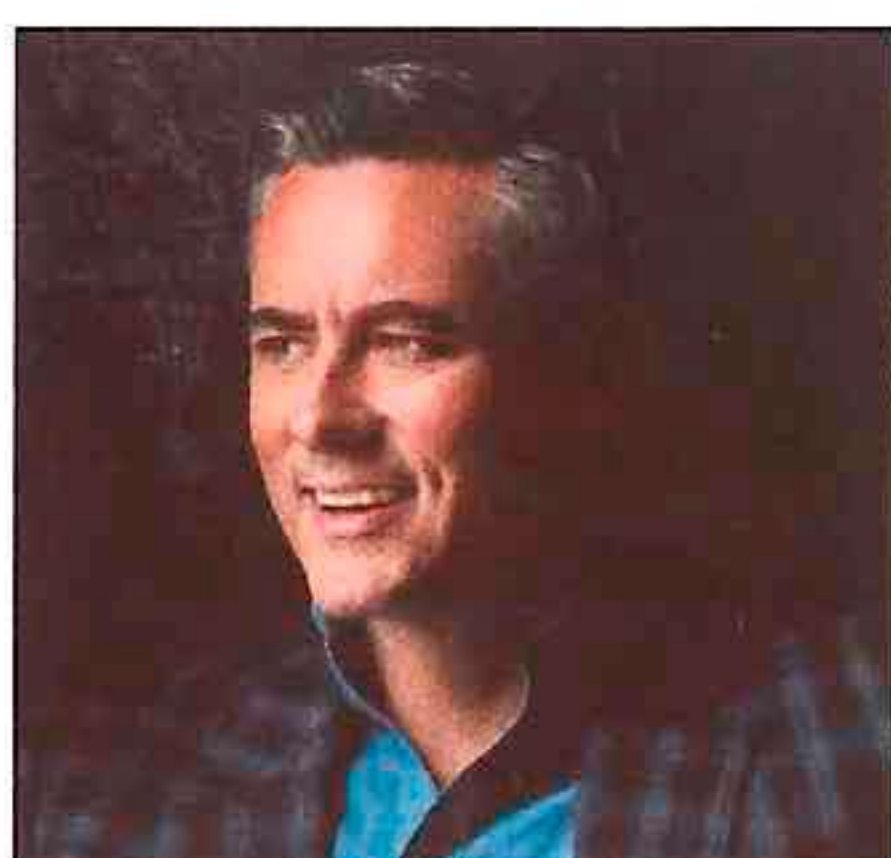

It may look like this London hallway designed by Hubert Zandberg has a wooden ceiling, but it is in fact papered in G P & J Baker's 'Woodgrain' wallpaper in the granite colourway. The wallpaper is a lightweight – and relatively cheap – option, which also complements the wooden floor. This colourway is now discontinued, but the silver birch colour, still in production, is similar. It is 52cm wide and costs £75 for a 10-metre roll. gpjbaker.com

• WALLPAPER •

▲► ALL IN UNISON

Wallpapering a whole room in a pattern works well in attic rooms or those with low roofs. In this Hamptons house (above), a small pattern keeps the space looking neat – Sanderson's 'Candytuft' (52cm wide, £38 for a 10-metre roll) would create a similar effect. In another approach, Tom Helme used Farrow & Ball's 'Tented Stripe' (53cm wide, £62 for a 10-metre roll) to soften the tricky shape of his billiard room (right). sanderson-uk.com | farrow-ball.com

Designer insight: Hubert Zandberg 'Wallpaper gives ceilings depth and dimension,' says Hubert. 'Wallpapered ceilings work especially well in smaller spaces, such as hallways and bathrooms, where they offer an unexpected way to bring in pattern and colour without being overpowering. You can be bold and get away with much more on the ceiling than you can on walls. Wallpapers with optical illusions and perspective are convincing because you can't get too close or touch them.' hzinteriors.com ►